

If “home is where the heart is,” then that heart must beat in the kitchen. A kitchen contains far more than a frosted freezer and leaky faucet. Any kitchen can provide a warm and inviting place for family and friends to gather, but especially Grandma’s kitchen. Joy and comfort fill Grandma’s kitchen where sweet smells escape from the oven, savory flavors saturate each dinner plate, and grandma’s love warms the entire room.

Steamy bread popping from the oven, comforting chicken soup swimming with soft noodles, and kind words mingling with Grandma’s smile greeted all who visited her kitchen. Grandma did not explore the far reaches of the world and taste exotic foods. Instead, she touched the lives of countless people from right inside the four walls of her kitchen. Everyone who visited experienced her compassionate care, for the heartbeat of Grandma’s love beat true and steady in her kitchen.
